WHEELING, JANUARY 21, 1891.

REPUBLICAN CITY TICKET.

FOR MAYOR:
JAMES A. DUNNING.
FOR CITY CLERK:
J. C. DEYER.
FOR CITY CLERK:
K. E. METZNER.
FOR VICE-MAYOR:
JOHN CROCKARD.
Election, January 22, 1891.

CONGRESSMAN MILLER would do well to take a recess. The strain of the session is telling on him.

KALAKAUA is gone, a little king of a little kingdom. His opportunities were not great and he did little with them. It was a hard fate to die away from home and in a hotel.

The House may be disturbed, but the Speaker isn't. No matter how great the furor on the floor the talented chair is as cool as a bushel of cucumbers. The next House will miss Mr. Reed.

WHEELING cannot fail to take interest in the World's Fair banquet to be given at Charleston, February 12, for Wheeling has a deep interest in the adequate representation of West Virginia at the fair.

The prohibition State of Iowa will offer at public sale liquor seized and confiscated. In Maine they are more consistent. When they have a "seizin" it is followed closely by a "seizin". The operation is not frequent enough to seriously interfere with the business of the liquor seller, who expects it about once in so often.

GENERAL MILLER understands the Indian nature. Having gathered 10,000 red skins into his corral he will to-day treat them to a review of the troops by way of impressing the aboriginal mind with the force of the strong arm of Uncle Samuel. He will also increase the nation of beef, another argument to which they will not turn a deaf ear. We are progressing in our Indian policy.

The members of the House who oppose the bill to allow Wheeling to go into electric lighting certainly do not understand the question. It is not to be supposed that the world and pleasure in denying to Wheeling a privilege which touches on other cities in other States. The city of Wheeling is already engaged in the gas lighting business. Why not electric lighting as well?

SENATOR BLAIR will presently have all the time he wants to talk on any topic he may select, and he will have the whole State of New Hampshire to do his talking in. Mr. Blair has been an industrious and conscientious Senator, but he could not help getting angry with people who did not prefer his speeches to the orations of Cicero. Many an able man impairs his usefulness because he cannot sink himself in his subject and beat himself serenely through the storms of opposition. Mr. Blair is such a man.

MR. CLEVELAND is ready to congratulate Governor Hill on his election to the United States Senate, where Mr. Hill may continue to do the speaking of the party before election day, leaving the Stuffed Prophet to come in afterwards and claim the earth and the fulness thereof as his personal reward. It is just possible that Governor Hill does not regard his election to the Senate as making the way entirely clear for Mr. Cleveland to take in the Presidential nomination. Hill has been known to be a little shy himself.

Where the Natural Gas is Falling.
The average diminution in the pressure of the natural gas wells of Ohio and Indiana is said to be 50 per cent. A falling off of one-half so soon is a dark foreboding for the towns which have rushed to the front under the original high pressure.

What they will be when the pressure falls to practically nothing, and what the manufacturing establishments will do that have been attracted by free gas when there is no more gas to be had at any price, are matters of deep interest to those immediately concerned.
Wheeling knows precisely what she will do when the pressure shall have waned through the mains to last flow. She will turn her hills and go on prospering as she did before she ever put a match to a natural gas fire. Natural gas is a good thing while it lasts, but it is not closely related to eternity.

Leaving the State.
It makes no real difference whether the Judiciary Committee or some other committee shall undertake the work of making districts in the hope of holding West Virginia in the Democratic column. The thing of interest is the job itself, not the advance guard of the jobbers.

So long as only the Republican party is hurt the measure will receive the support of the solid Democracy. The only prospect of trouble in the family is that some Democratic vote may be stepped on. There are few patriots of that party willing to be sacrificed for the party's good. If for example, the bill should embody the feeling of many Democrats, namely, to make three Democratic Congressional districts beyond peradventure—if this be possible—leaving one district as solid Republican, there would be an unprecedented demand for red paint and tomato-bawke.

The First District has been selected by common consent as the district to be made overwhelmingly Republican. Upon all shall have this boon conferred upon it. But in the proposed First District are many Democratic aspirants who have long waited for a chance to distinguish themselves on the floor of the House of Representatives.

It is to be supposed that these men, devoted as they are to the principles of Jefferson and Jackson, are going to prostrate themselves cheerfully and let the Democratic juggernaut run over them? They will be asking, "What are we here for?" They will have the co-operation of Democrats of other districts who will not give up the slender hope of carrying all the Congressional districts.

When the knife gets to work there will be a reasonable amount of entertainment. Republicans will not be much to do in the way of speaking parts, but they can sit in the gallery and see the show go on.

Advancing in Obstruction.
Least the election bill may come before the House the Democratic statesmen of that body are taking the time by the forelock in an endeavor to so delay the regular business as that there will be no time to get the election bill through.

This is carrying the policy of obstruction further than even the obstructive Democracy has ever carried it before. Upon now the Democrats have been content to obstruct the passage of the measure they opposed. Now they declare a blockade against everything to make sure of blockading one thing.

It is a good way to disgust the thinking man of the country, who may be supposed to favor the orderly dispatch of business.

Women in Medicine.
It must be that woman is squeezing her way behind the drug counter, or the Pharmaceutical Era would not be moved to this clever rhymic:

"What's the medicine for my pretty maid?"
"Nothing much," with a smile, she said.
But for the result I fear rather afraid.
As the wonderful "nothing much" was made.

With aspirin and quinine she gently played,
And arsenic was just as gently weighed.

Gay dashes at oxides and sulphates she made,
And strabine drops on the mixture were laid.

On potassium cyanide she then made a raid,
While my hair did uprise and my color did fade.

"What is it, now that it is done, fair maid?"
"Oh nothing much," she said, "I'm glad."

"And who did prescribe it, my dearest maid?"
"Nobody but a lady M.D.," she said.

"The lady's name was you've made?"
"This nothing from nothing, oh, mixing maid."

It seems that the woman drug clerk is to be killed with ridicule. The inference to be drawn from the foregoing is that the male mind which understands these things is quite incapable of mastering the drug clerk's art as incapable as her sex is of comprehending the theory and practice of medicine.

It is strange that the Pharmaceutical Era has not learned that some of the most successful physicians in the country are women, and that the number of women physicians of recognized ability is increasing. If it be in the female sex to make good physicians, why not good drug clerks?

Since the question is raised, the drug business seems to open a field of peculiar fitness for women who are physically strong enough to mix the strongest doses that may be prescribed. Besides, it would be a great pleasure to hand to an engaging woman fifteen cents for two cents' worth of laudanum in a one cent bottle. The man drug clerk must get ready to look out for himself.

A Plot in Real Life.
Here is a plot for Gaborian from real life. About two years ago an outrage was committed in Canada similar to one which has just raised a fury in the North. The grown-up daughter of a Congressional minister in the eastern townships was waylaid when going home along a dark country road at night, and was fatally assaulted and murdered. When her body was found next morning in a mill pond, close by the post-mortem revealed the plain imprint of two fingers on her throat. But the fingers were not neighbors—the points of the middle finger seemed to have left no mark. Large rewards were offered, but without effect. Within the last few months a fugitive criminal from the States, who under an alias had been playing the part of miner, in consequence of a wound received during the civil war, and this coincidence is likely to bring him into court on the capital charge if he can be found.

Merit Wins.
We desire to say to our citizens, that for years we have been selling Dr. King's New Discovery for Consumption, Dr. King's New Life Pills, Bucklen's Arnica Salve and Electric Bitters, and have never handled remedies that sell as well, or that have given such universal satisfaction. We do not hesitate to guarantee them every time, and we stand ready to refund the purchase price, if satisfactory results do not follow their use. These remedies have won their popularity purely on their merits. Logan Drug Co., druggists.

Excursion to the National Capitol.
On Thursday, January 22, the B. & O. R. R. Company will run one of those pleasant mid-winter excursions to Washington, which were so popular a year ago. The time for the excursion is well chosen, as the National Capitol at this season of the year is the best of its political and social glory. Both houses of Congress are in session, daily with the galleries always open to visitors. Then, too, there are the monuments, the statues, the national public buildings, and the beautiful public squares and avenues, always interesting sights. The White House, the Smithsonian Institute, the National Museum, the Corcoran Art Gallery, the Botanical Garden and Washington's Monument are open to all visitors. Such an opportunity for a visit to the city of Magnificent Distances is rarely presented as this.

The tickets will be good ten days, allowing ample time for visiting Alexandria, Mt. Vernon, Richmond, Old Point Comfort and points of interest within easy reach of Washington.
